

AT&T

AT&T (NYSE:T) is committed to investing in and deploying advanced Internet based networks to deliver more reliable, seamless and consistent connections for our customers that helps stimulate economic growth and create new jobs.

To meet customers' needs for new services, products and apps, we have invested nearly $119 billion in our wired and wireless networks in the U.S. over the past 6 years – more than any other public company, and more than many other industries' entire combined U.S. investment.

From 2011 to 2013 in South Carolina, we have invested more than $825 million in our networks, driving a wide range of upgrades to enhance network speed, reliability, coverage and performance for residents and business customers.

Consumers are continuing to demand new, integrated communications services and are actively migrating to the high-speed smart networks required to stay connected. To meet and exceed this consumer demand, AT&T has committed to a multi-billion dollar investment in seamless, reliable mobile IP connections.

Today, AT&T delivers the nation's most reliable 4G LTE network^{*}, advanced TV service through AT&T U-verse[®], award-winning Digital Life[®] service that offers convenient home automation and security and an IP-based business communications suite that is one of the most cutting-edge in the world.

Looking to the future, AT&T is excited to embrace advanced communications technologies, and the opportunities they will bring for incredible innovations to benefit all Americans.

*Limited 4G LTE availability in select markets. LTE is a trademark of ETSI. AT&T's 4G LTE Reliability claim based on analysis of data network connection and data transaction success rates reported by Nielsen during network tests conducted across 225 markets from Nov 2012 to Nov 2013, and compares carriers with nationwide 4G LTE networks.
